

Schools are just about to close, and kids will be around for the long summer holidays. While most parents look forward to spending tons of time with their children, kids can get bored really fast. Good thing, there are plenty of summer camps in Edinburgh to come to your rescue! The best thing about sending your child to camp is the possibility that they open up a plethora of opportunities to learn new skills. These opportunities include building long-life friendships, learning essential skills, building self-image but most importantly, kids spend most of the day being active and having fun.

Below is a list of the best summer camps in Edinburgh

1. Galleon Camps, George Watson's College (June 30 – August 1)

These camps are run by the Galleon and located within the Centre for Sport and use all Galleon facilities on campus.

6. Summer Camps in Scotland \(July 19 – August 2\)

Our Summer Camp Is an Inclusive Space Where Everyone Is Welcome.

Each year we build a bright and beautiful campsite entirely under canvas at Struan, near Calvine. There, our campers can come together, enjoy the summer, be outdoors and get involved in all of the varied activities we offer. We pride ourselves on being different from any other camp you may have heard about before. It is hard to describe, but we know we help our young people to build confidence, learn new skills and we have a proven track record of our campers making friends for life! The majority of our volunteers are former campers, who all forged great friendships, and credit SSC with many of the best parts of themselves.

11. Edinburgh Steiner School – Summer Camps \(August 4 – 15\)

Our internationally-recognized curriculum, practiced in over 2,000 Kindergartens in some 80 countries, on every habitable continent, considered the first seven years of a child's life as deeply important. The rhythmical aspect of the kindergarten differs from most other early years settings and here is why.

Steiner philosophy behind 'rhythm' is not a routine or schedule but to integrate the child's need for in-breaths and out-breaths – time for quiet absorption (painting) followed by time for moving and expansion such a free play. So, a time to create and a time to release. This is enhanced by the rhythm of the week where a certain activity marks the difference in days of the week, which are unchanged, such as soup-making Mondays and bonfire Fridays. Children know what will be coming next which builds a sense of security in the adults and environment around them.

- Ages:
3 to 6 Years Old
